As you leave the airport terminal, driving on the right-hand side of the road is recommended.

Follow exit signs to the perimeter roundabout.

Ignoring all signposts at this roundabout, take the last exit.

This is a smallish road that runs alongside the airport's perimeter fence; after a hundred yards or so you can enjoy a view of the sea and Sola beach on your right (one of the world's top 10 beaches, according to the Daily Telegraph).

If you can resist the lure of the beach, carry on and follow the road sharply round to the left (still following the airport's perimeter fence). Continue until you reach a "T"-junction with a slightly larger road. Turn left here (you'll see presently that you still have the airport on your left).

After a few hundred yards, turn right towards Sandnes (road 509). This is an automatic toll road (you don't need to do anything except smile while you're photographed).

As soon as you pick up signs for E39 Kristiansand, follow those instead of Sandnes.

Take E39 south (towards Kristiansand – NOT E39 towards Stavanger).

The E39 is a kind of dual carriageway in patches.

Watch speed camera in 70 zone at Bråstein (just after you're clear of built-up area).

You'll follow this road through ÅLGÅRD (a small town of mini-roundabouts and petrol stations).

Keep going, past rivers and lakes for another 10-15 minutes.

At the bottom of quite a long hill, there's a village (Vikeså), with a Statoil petrol station on the left. Turn left here, onto road 503, past the Statoil station.

Last services/petrol before half-hour drive to Ørsdalen!

Follow road 503 through village, past Joker shop on the right (it sells food, not itching powder), then past school on left and running track on right.

Keep going, past rivers and lakes.

Ignore the turn-off to Ivesdal (see picture, right): keep to the "main" road towards Byrkjedal. The road narrows after this point and there are a few blind bends (with white sticks) and overhanging cliffs.

Keep going, past rivers and lakes.

When the road crosses a bridge over the river at MALMEI, take the first turning on the right (signposted Stavtjørn and Ørsdalen).

Keep going, past rivers and lakes.
Keep going, past more rivers and lakes.
Keep going, until you're fed up of rivers and lakes.

There is a series of three short tunnels, then up a little hill and past the odd river and lake before you drive through a fourth tunnel, which is not quite as posh as the previous three.

When you emerge, take a moment to recover and enjoy the spectacular view across Ørsdalen.

Down the winding hill and to a road junction. Turn left (signposted HOVLAND and BJORDAL).

Keep going, past a river. If you see a lake, you've gone wrong.

When you pass the churchyard (white fence) on left, you're half way. From the junction, that is, not from the airport.

On the right, you'll see a huge boulder, about the size of a house, which disconcertingly has rolled off the mountain at some point. (Note that passing boulders have right of way over cars. And we mean "over".)

Once you can see the boulder, turn left up the gravel track, by the green post box in a white post-box stand.

Keep going: no rivers or lakes unless it's raining hard. We're at the top.
